BIRDCAGE

japanese fusion

Owner Neil Prentice has rekindled the historic George Hotel's Birdcage bar of the 1970s and 80s with this stylish, new steel-enclosed wine bar. The original 1920s floor mosaics are still intact and the wood panelling and high bar stools create a welcoming space. Japanese chef Kazu Nomura, who used to run Le Japon, cooks up soups, noodles and rice dishes, and a range of hot and cold Japanese tapas-style dishes that are fun to share, such as pancake balls filled with octopus and spring onions, or crumbed fried oysters. Start with a plate of glistening sashimi from the sushi bar and perhaps even try the homemade wines.
